AS youth is the time of life most capable of instruction; and as it is a concern of the last importance to learn early: for otherwise, in Cicero's opinion, we very seldom, if ever learn at all; each attempt, how weak soever, to render the study of the Sciences easy and amiable, is in itself praise-worthy and may, with modesty, lay claim to such a share of the indulgence of the Public, as is, in some degree, equal to its merit.

Without depreciating, therefore, the labours of those who have travelled in the same road before us, we shall content ourselves, with barely examining the little Plan which we have here pursued and declare, without reserve, the principal motives that induced us to undertake it.

To confess ingenuously then, we are conscious to ourselves, that the alphabetical list, or collection of words inserted in our little * SPELLING BOOK, is not so copious as some may possibly wish it; but then that omission was owing, in part, to the narrow compass to which we were confined, and partly to a view of introducing other matter, equally instructive, and more entertaining. In this compendious DICTIONARY, however, the deficiency is abundantly supplied; for here any parent, school-master, or governess, will find a vast variety of additional words, of any particular number of syllables required, by inspecting only the figures in the margin, which denotes the proper division; and moreover, not only the double, as well as single accents, were necessary in order to prevent a vicious pronunciation, but the several parts of speech to which they respectively belong; the little (s) on the right hand, denoting the word to be a Substantive; the (a) an Adjective; the (v) a Verb; and the (p) a Particle; into which all the parts of speech (though usually reckoned eight) may, with propriety, be resolved. And whenever the same words are repeated, they will find the additional letter always varied, and sometimes the orthography, to shew that the sense and signification are very different. This method, we humbly conceive, may not only be of service to our little natives, but also to such ladies and foreigners, who are desirous of improving themselves in the English tongue, and of pronouncing it with elegance and energy.

A COMPENDIOUS
ENGLISH GRAMMAR ; WITH A CONCISE HISTORICAL ACCOUNT
OF THAT LANGUAGE.

THE power of giving sounds to thought, a voice to the silent language of the heart, and of expressing all that the mind can conceive by combinations of intelligible tones addressed to the ear, is one of the most amazing, and at the same time one of the greatest privileges of our nature ; and closely connected with this, as the most valuable of all human discoveries, is the art of impressing these thoughts on the eye in legible characters. By the former we are rendered capable of sociable intercourse, of receiving and conveying ideas, of enjoying the endearments of friendship, and the communications of wisdom : By the latter we converse where the ear is far out of the reach of sound, and transmit our thoughts to the remotest parts of the earth; we treasure up what might otherwise escape our memories, become acquainted with the actions of former ages and distant countries, with all the learning of the ancients and improvements of the moderns, and can read the laws which the great Creator of the Universe has given for the government of our passions, and the regulation of our conduct. Without the first, we should have been solitary in the midst of crouds, excluded from every kind of knowledge, except what fell under our immediate notice; and should have been confined to dull and tedious efforts of intimating our desires by signs and gestures. Without the last we might indeed enjoy the benefit of conversation, but then we should be held in ignorance, and perplexed in error; we should obtain but a very imperfect knowledge of the present time, and could receive no information as to the past but from partial accounts handed down by tradition. In short, without the first we could scarcely be accounted rational and but for the last we should have been as ignorant as the wild illiterate Indians.

It has been observed, that language is to the mind what painting and sculpture are to the sight; however, the difference in favour of the former is extremely great. The most finished pieces of imagery are at best but dull and unaf- fecting, when compared with the energy of words. By such masterly productions of art, we have indeed the object pre- sented before us, but language can set it in all varieties of view under every com- bination of circumstances.

The idea of an universal language, could such a one possibly obtain, should seem to imply something highly benefi- cial to the human race; but eternal un- erring wisdom, either for our advantage or punishment, has determined against it, and appointed to every nation a par- ticular tongue, and to each district its peculiar dialect.

Having said thus much of language in general, it is requisite that we now give a succinct account of our own, point out the various changes it has undergone, and by what means it has arrived at its present perfection.

As we have many reasons to conclude that this country was originally peopled from the adjacent coast of France, the ancient Gaul, we are thence to infer, that the British Language, eighteen hundred years ago, was the same as that dialect of the Gaulish called the Celtic. But about half a century before the Christian æra, Julius Cæsar invaded Britain, and in the reign of Claudius, a Roman colony was planted in the south-east parts of England, and finally under Domitian the whole nation became a Roman province; when those Britons, who refused to submit to the foreign yoke, retired into Wales, in hopes of retaining their liberty, and carried their language along with them. From this period the Latin tongue was gradually introduced, and mixed in all parts of the land with the British, which those first conquerors were never able to suppress.

In this fit

At length the Roman legions were called home; and then the Scots and Picts making an irruption in the north parts of England, king Vortigern, about the year 400, invited the Saxons to his assistance. These allies came over with several of their neighbours under the conduct of Hengist and Horfa, and having subdued the Scots and Picts, had the Isle of Thanet assigned them at first as a reward for their service, and afterwards the whole county of Kent, which they governed about 350 years, till growing powerful and dissatisfied with their narrow limits, they at length took possession of all the country on this side the Welch mountains, and divided it among themselves into seven kingdoms, called the Saxon heptarchy. Thus the British tongue, before mixed with the Latin, was almost abolished, and many of the Britons obliged again to take refuge in Wales and Cornwall, while the usurpers laid the foundation of new laws and a new language.

till about the year 800, when it was invaded by the Danes, who, after being several times repulsed, established themselves in the northern and eastern parts, where their power increasing, they at length, after a contest of 200 years made themselves the sole masters of England ; and by this means the language became tinged with the Danish ; but as their government was of no long duration, it did not make so great an alteration in the Anglo-Saxon, as the next revolution, when the whole was again subdued by William duke of Normandy, afterwards called William the Conqueror, for the Normans, as a monument of their conquest, endeavoured to make their language as universally received as possible.

Thus the English tongue, which was anciently pure British or Welch, became a mixture of a little British, a great deal of Latin, a yet far greater part of Anglo-Saxon, some Danish, and an abundance of Norman French ; since that time the revival of arts and sciences has added greatly to its embellishment. These have introduced a vast variety of words from the Greek, Latin, Italian, and modern French: our poets have added grace and harmony to their numbers, and our prose writers have strengthened and improved their periods, by selecting the most musical, expressive, and strongest terms from every known language: so that, notwithstanding its being a compound of such heterogeneous ingredients, it is become the most copious and significant of any in Europe, adapted to all subjects, and expressive of every sentiment with elegance and propriety.

We come next to give a short account of the several parts of the English tongue taken in a Grammatical sense; by which it will appear to be extremely simple in its composition, and free from the many rules which render others difficult to the learner: for though grammar is the same in all languages, except the Chinese; yet every grammar ought to be adapted to the genius of that language, which it is intended to illustrate and explain.

Without going into a critical dissertation on the letters of the alphabet, and the proper manner of dividing syllables, we shall immediately enter upon the parts of speech, which may be distinguished into these four; nouns substantive, nouns adjective, verbs, and particles.

Nouns SUBSTANTIVE, or names, are words whereby things themselves, whether sensible or intelligible, are expressed, and therefore the word thing cannot be put immediately after a substantive, without making it nonsense; for we cannot say man thing, horse thing, &c. They are called substantives, because they stand alone, or with an article, and require no other word to express their signification. In the following Dictionary these nouns are marked with (s) by way of abbreviation. They are divided into common, proper, and personal. The common comprehends a whole kind or species, as man is a name that belongs to all men, city to every city, and river to every river. The proper serves to distinguish particular things, as John is the name of a particular man, London of a certain city, and the Thames of a particular river. The personal or PRO-NOUN, is used to avoid the repetition of other names: as I, instead of my name; thou or you, instead of your name; he and she, instead of the name of the person of whom we are speaking; and it,

 when we mention a thing that has no distinct sex. Thus in speaking of myself, I use the word I; if more than one speak of themselves, they use the word
we; in speaking to another, we use thou or you; in speaking to more than one, we say ye or you; if we speak of a person to whom we do not address our discourse, we say he or she; and of a thing without sex, it; and if of more persons or things than one, we say they.
 Here it is worthy of remark, that who, which and what are sometimes called personal interrogatives, as being frequently used in asking of questions, in an, one, or the going before it, as a bird,

a king, an arm, or the arm; and the plural is generally known by its ending with s, as birds, kings, arms; but when the singular ends with cb, sh, fs, or x, then es must be added, as churches, dishes, asses, foxes. To this general rule there are however a few exceptions, as those singulars which end in f or fe have their plurals ending in ves, as loaf, loaves;
wife, wives; calf, calves; though dwarf,
loaf, handkerchief, mischief, proof, relief,
reproof, roof, scarf, wharf, are made plural by adding only s, as are words ending in ff, except slaves. Again, some words are entirely changed in the plural, as foot makes feet; goose, geese; chick, chickens or chicken; tooth, teeth; man,
men; woman, women; child, children;
brother, brethren, or brothers; ox, oxen;
sheep, sheep; lice: mouse, mice; penny, pence;
cow, kine, or cows. Some words have plural, as corn, wheat, rice, barley, bran, meal, beer, vinegar, honey,
tar, pitch, wool, dust, hunger, thirst, offspring, &c. Of this class are also the virtues and vices, as justice, temperance, hatred, envy, &c. and abstract qualities, as happiness, misery, wisdom, paleness, contempt, grief, &c. Others have the same ending in both numbers, as deer, sheep, &c. And others have no singular, as bellows, bowels, breeches, tongues, scissors, snuffers, folks, wages, thanks, &c.

In most other languages the masculine and feminine genders being applied to inanimate things, give no small trouble to the learner; but with us they are only applied to their proper and necessary use, that is, to distinguish the sex in which we either use two words, as man, woman; boy, girl; brother, sister; duck, drake; goose, gander; or by putting another word expressive of the sex before the name, as in man servant, maid servant; male child, female child; cock sparrow, hen sparrow; he goat, she goat. In some few words, the feminine is distinguished from the male, by changing the termination into ess, as count, countess; heir, heiress; prince, princess; or into x, as administratrix, electrix, trix, testatrix. They are also known by the personal names, he, him, used in speaking of males; she, her, used in referring to females: and it, when we refer to inanimate things. But there are four or five words in the language which may be considered as exceptions to this rule; for we sometimes use the word sun in the masculine gender, and the moon, the church, and a ship are of the feminine.

Instead of cases, and the various terminations and declensions used in Latin, we have only the articles, a, an, the, of, to, by, from, with, &c. to distinguish the several circumstances of the noun, either when alone, or when joined to an adjective; except in the genitive case, which we sometimes form by adding 's to the noun, as, for the son of the King, we write the King's son; we also say, Charles's watch, James's book, &c.

ADJECTIVES, distinguished in the following dictionary by (a) express the qualities or properties of the substantives; as fine, good, wise, excellent, foolish, &c., which must have a substantive joined to them to make them understood, as a fine garden, a good woman, a wise man, &c. And these in the English tongue have neither number, case nor gender, but are joined to nouns, either masculine or feminine, singular or plural, without altering their terminations, as a good man, a good woman, a good house, good men, &c. and though in most other languages they are placed after the substantive, in English they are placed before it, as in the above examples; in poetry, however, this order is sometimes changed, as O bard divine! The principal peculiarity of this part of speech is, that qualities admit of degrees of comparison, which things do not; and of these there are properly but two, called the comparative, and the superlative, both formed from the quality in its positive state, which expresses simply and absolutely the state of the name without relation to the like quality in any other; as wise, bright, fair, &c. The comparative degree, by comparing one thing with another, expresses the quality somewhat increased or diminished, and is formed by adding er to the positive, as wiser, brighter, fairer, viler: and the superlative degree expresses absolutely the superiority of one above or beyond the other, as wisest, brightest, fairest, vilest. The degrees of comparison are also frequently formed by adding more or most, without altering the termination of the adjective, as more wise, most wise; which serves to vary the turn of expression, and is often esteemed more elegant than barely altering the termination; this is particularly the case in words of two, three, or more syllables: thus more beautiful, most beautiful are more elegant than beautifuller, beautifullest. Thus extraordinary, remarkable, and most other long words, have their degrees of comparison always expressed by more or most; for we never say extraordinarier, extraordinariest. We have, however, a few irregulars, which cannot be brought under these rules, in which the degrees of comparison are formed by different words, as little, less, least; bad, worse, worst; good, better, best; much or many, more, most.

It must be observed, that nouns or names are sometimes used as adjectives or qualities, as a gold watch, a diamond ring, a silver candlestick: And that a quality is used as a name, and it is to be considered as a substantive, whenever it is taken in an abstracted or universal sense, which substantives are generally formed by adding ness to the adjective, as goodness, whiteness, &c.

Some grammarians have ranked the words my, mine; thy, thine; his, hers; our, ours; you, yours; their, theirs; under the class of qualities derived from personal names, and called them personal possessives; and also, this, that, the same, which are called demonstratives, because they shew what particular person or thing we mean; as this house, that house. This and that, in the plural number makes these and those.

or said of things ; and is usually reckoned of two kinds, the auxiliary verb, and the verb itself, both of which have persons, numbers, and tenses or times.
 The verbs, which are distinguished by a personal name going before them, vary their terminations only in the singular number, as in I live, thou livest, he lives or liveth, we live, ye live, they live. The affirmations in the English language have but three tenses or times, the present, the past, and the future ; or in other words the thing doing, done, or to be done ; for all other tenses are formed by adding the auxiliary verb, and without any variation in the termination. The present tense is expressed by the affirmation itself, as dance ; the past tense generally ends with ed, as I danced ; and the future is formed by adding the auxiliary verb shall or will, as I shall dance ; and as there are but two tenses or times expressed by the affirmation, its various changes are signified by the nine following auxiliary affirmations, viz. do, will,
shall, may, can, must, ought, have, am, or be, which being placed before other affirmations, signify time, resolution, power, liberty, necessity, duty, &c.

It must be observed, that when one of these auxiliaries is put before another affirmation, the auxiliary only alters its termination in expressing the persons, as I am living, thou art living, he is living, we are living, &c. I do live, thou dost live, he doth or does live, &c.

As some are apt to mistake the use of shall and will, the signs of the future tense, it must be observed that when we only simply foretell, we use shall in the first person, and will in the rest; but when we promise, threaten or engage, we use will in the first person, and shall in the others.

We have said, that the affirmation generally expresses the past time by adding ed to the present; but there are pretty many words which cannot be reduced to this rule: the most common irregularity is the changing the d into t and omitting the vowel, as in mixt, for mixed; the others are too many to be

The affirmation has sometimes the particle to placed before it; and when it is thus used, it is always joined with another affirmation; and has then the power of a name or substantive.

PARTICLES, marked in the following dictionary with a (p) are such words as denote some circumstances or quality of an action, join words or sentences together, or express some sudden emotions of the soul: and these comprehend all that are commonly known by the name adverbs, conjunctions, prepositions, and interjections, words which, though of different natures, ought to be reduced to one class, since they always retain their own, and are subject to none of the variations of the other parts of speech.

The use of ADVERBS is to denote the circumstance or quality of the word to which they are joined, which is frequently to an affirmation, as I love her dearly; and as many of these are derived from qualities, they, like them, admit of degrees of comparison, as happily, more happily, most happily; wisely, more wisely, most wisely: these always end in ly. Adverbs are also divided into those of time, as now, already, yesterday, often, always, seldom, &c. In those of place, as here, there, higher, above, below, &c. Into those of number, as first, second, thirdly; once, twice, &c. Into those of quantity, as more, less, enough, too much, &c. Into those of affirmation, as yea, yes, truly, &c. Into those of negation, as no, not, nay, &c. Into those of doubting, as perhaps, peradventure, &c.

CONJUNCTIONS are words that join sentences together, and shew the manner of their dependance on one another; as and, also, or, nor, either, neither.

PREPOSITIONS are particles set before other words, to shew the relation which the subsequent word has to some other INTERJECTIONS are imperfect words, mostly monosyllables, that denote some sudden emotion or passion of the mind, and being expressed by a kind of involuntary impulse, have no connection with any other part of a sentence, as, ah! alas! strange! pish! feh! bush! bark, &c.

Of these four parts of speech every sentence is compounded, and in the proper choice of words, and the disposition and manner of placing them, all the elegance, harmony, and force of language, consist.

GENERAL RULES for dividing WORDS of several syllables, and for spelling and writing true English.

IN spelling words of several syllables all the letters, whereof the first is composed, must be joined together and pronounced; then the letters that make up the second syllable must be put together, which when pronounced must be added to the first; and so on, till the whole word be finished; as for instance in the word Multiplication.

m u l——mul

t i——ti——mul-ti

p l i——pli——mul-ti-pli

c a——ca——mul-ti-pli-ca t i——ti——mul-ti-pli-ca-ti

o n——on——mul-ti-pli-ca-ti-on.

In order to know exactly what number of syllables there are in a word, you must find out all the distinct sounds that are in it; as for instance, in Mar there are two, in Mar-tyr-dom there are three, and in Mar-ty-ro-lo-gy, five, &c.

The general rule for spelling is this divide your syllables correctly, and put as many letters to one syllable, as make one distinct sound in the pronunciation of the word, as di-al, de-ni-al, con-gre-ga-ti-on, &c.

The special rules are the four following, namely,

1. When a single consonant falls between two vowels, it is joined with the latter; as pe-rish, pu-nish, &c. (though to this rule there are some exceptions) and the letter x is always joined to the preceding vowel, as taxes, boxes, &c.

2. When two consonants of the same kind come together, they must be divided, as dag-ger, let-ter, big-ger, &c.

3. When several consonants come together in the middle of a word, they must be placed in the syllables, according to the distinct sounds, as for instance, in-scribe, re-trench, a-ble, ta-ble, &c. but sis-ter, blis-ter, bas-ket, cas-ket, &c. the consonants must be divided, one to the first, and the other to the latter syllable, because they are so pronounced.

4. When two vowels come together in the middle, and both are distinctly pronounced, they must be parted: as for example, di-al, tri-al, cre-ate, re-cre-ter, &c.

Though these are the principal rules to be observed, yet there are some few exceptions; as for instance, all such words as are composed of two distinct ones, such as house-wife, free-bold, where-as, where-in, &c. as also such words consist of a primitive and a preposition preceding it, as ad-orn, in-ure, en-able, &c. And lastly, such as consist of one word and a termination, viz. charm-ed, ing, and er; paint-eth, ed, ing, er, &c. In all which cases the single words must keep their own proper letters and syllables distinct, and the little prepositions and terminations must be spelt distinctly by themselves.

You are likewise to observe,

1. That when ch, ph, th, or sh, begin either a word or a syllable, they must be looked upon as single consonants, except where they are sounded apart, as Clapham, &c.

2. That in the first syllable, doubled, syllables,

3. That some words begin with double consonants, and some with three.

4. In monosyllables, instead of l, write

&c. but in words of two or more syllables make use only of one l, as wo-ful,

With regard to spelling and writing true English, the best way will be to pronounce your words clear and distinct, syllable by syllable, give the full sound to every part of a word, and write as it is pronounced in the hardest and harshest manner: as for instance,
iron, not i-urn, a-pron, not a-purn, calf,
not caf, &c.

As you read, observe how the vowels
and consonants are sounded in different parts of words, whether English or Fo- reign, and remember to write them accordingly.

Observe where letters keep their proper sound, and where they change it.

Take notice also of such letters as are silent, and not pronounced at all ; and remember to put those letters in when you write, though you leave them out when you read.

Accustom yourself to spell every word true : and if you are in the least dubious, write it not without consulting the or some other English Dictionary.

Of QUANTITY and ACCENT.

THE general rule to be observed in the pronouncing of words according to its proper Quantity ; and every word of two or more syllables must have its proper Accent.

By Quantity I mean the distinction of syllables in Long or Short, in reading either prose or verse ; and this depends on the various sounds of the vowels. But here let it be observed, that though in reading verse the accent must be laid on the same syllable as prose, and the words pronounced in the same manner, yet a syllable in verse is called long or short, not according to the long or short vowel, but according to the Accent.

By Accent is meant that particular stress or force of sound which the voice lays upon any syllable, whether it be long or short, as upon ro in róver, or hap in *háp*py; and though the accent be more frequently laid on a long syllable than a short one, it is not so always; nor is the accent always upon the same syllables in the same words; for the same word, when it is an affirmation, has the accent upon the last syllable, as to convért, to réel, to recórd; but when it is a name, it is accented on the first, as a Cónvert, Rébel, a Récord. Again,

Compound and derivative words are always accented like their primitive; for in Máker the accent is strong on the first syllable: which in Shóemaker is soft. So confér, prefér, and the like, have their accents on the last syllable; but conférence, préférence, &c. on the first.

Some long words also have two accents, as ómniprésént, fámiliáritý, jústificátion; and some three, as tránssubstantiátion; but then the last is commonly the strongest; and as there are no general Rules for placing the accent on words of several syllables, we must be determined by custom; yet it is worth observing, that in our language the accent is generally removed as far as possible at least as far as conveniently may be from the last syllable.—We shall add a few particular remarks on this general observation.

1. In words of two syllables, which are both short or both long, the accent is usually laid on the first, as in happy, private, and the like.

2. If the first syllable only be long, the accent is generally laid upon it.

3. When the accent is laid upon the last syllable, the word is commonly of the sort of compound, as divért, préretúrn.

4. In words which have two last syllables, as intémpérance, But after the proper time will be the particular

4. In words of three or more syllables the accent is seldom laid on the two last, but often on the first or second, as intémperance, cóntroversy, abóminable. But after all the rules that can be given, proper tables or catalogues of words will be the best help to children in this particular.

RULES for READING, and particularly of the EMPHASIS belonging to some special Word or Words in a Sentence.

IN order to read well, observe the following directions.

1. Take pains to acquire a perfect knowledge of the sounds of all the letters in general.
2. Do not guess at a word at first sight, if you are not well acquainted with it, lest you get a habit of reading falsely.
3. Pronounce every word clearly and distinctly.
4. Let the tone of your voice in reading be the same as in speaking.
5. Do not read in a hurry, for fear of learning to stammer.
6. Read so loud as to be heard by those about you, but not louder.
7. Observe your pauses well, and never make any, where the sense will admit of none.
8. Humour your voice a little according to the subject.
9. Attend to those who read well, and endeavour to imitate their pronunciation.
10. Read often before good judges, and be thankful when they correct you.

consider well the place of the Emphasis in a sentence, and pronounce it accordingly: By Emphasis we mean, the stress or force of voice that is laid on some particular word or words in a sentence, whereby the meaning and beauty of the whole may best appear; this, with respect to sentences, is the same as Accent, with regard to syllables.

The Emphasis is generally placed upon the accented syllable of a word; but if there be a particular opposition between two words in a sentence, whereby one differs from the other but in part, the accent is sometimes removed from its common place, as in the following instance: The sun shines upon the just and upon the unjust. Here the stress of the voice is laid upon the first syllable in unjust, because it is opposed to just in the same sentence; but without such opposition the accent would lie on its usual place, that is, on the last syllable; as, We must not imitate the unjust practices of others.

The great and general rule how to know the emphatical word in a sentence is, to consider the chief design of the whole; but particular directions cannot be easily given: except that when words are evidently opposed to one another in a sentence, they are emphatical; and so is oftentimes the word which asks a question, as, who, what, when, &c. but not always; for the emphasis must be varied according to the principal meaning of the speaker; as suppose I require, Did my Father walk abroad yesterday? If I lay the emphasis on the word Father, it is plain I want to know whether it was he or somebody else; if I place the emphasis on walk, the person I speak to is sensible I would be informed whether he went on foot or on horseback, &c. But if I lay the stress of my voice on the word yesterday, it denotes that I am satisfied my father did go abroad, and that he went on foot, though I want to know the particular time, whether it was yesterday, or some day before.

Instructions for Reading VERSE.

THERE are two ways of writing on any subject, namely, in Prose, and in Verse.

Prose is the usual method of writing, without any confinement to a certain number of syllables, or ranging the words in any particular form; which, on the contrary, verse requires.

The words in verse must be ranged so, as that the accents may naturally fall on such peculiar syllables as make a sort of harmony to the ear: and this is called Metre, that is, Measure; to which Rhyme is generally added; that is, two or more verses, near to each other, are made to end with the same, or the like sound: but this is not absolutely necessary.

There is another sort of verse which has no rhyme, called Blank Verse, the words whereof are generally disposed in metre, so as that the accent may fall on every second, fourth, and sixth syllable; and on the eighth, tenth, and twelfth also, if the lines are so long. The following verse of ten syllables may serve for an example.

The monarch spöke, and straight a múrmur rose.

But our poetry allows of great and frequent variation from this rule, especially in the first and second syllables of the line; as in the verse which rhymes with the former, where the accent is upon the first syllable:

Lóud as the súrger when the ténpest blóws

There are two sorts of metre which vary from this rule; one of them is when the line contains but seven syllables, and the accent lies on the first, third, fifth, and seventh; as in the following:

*Cóuld we, which we néver cán,
Strétch our líves beyond their spán;
Beauté líke a sháadow flíes,
And our youth before us díes.*

The other sort has a hasty sound, and requires an accent on every third syllable; as for example:

followve for ur rose.

and fre-

*'Tis the voice of the slúggard: I hear him
complain,*

You have wák'd me too soon, I must slúmver again.

In reading verse you are to pronounce it just as if it were prose, observing the stops with great exactness, and giving each word or syllable its due and natural accent; but with these two restrictions, 1. Though there be no stop at the end of a line, make a small pause (less than after a comma) before you begin the next. 2. If any word in the line has two sounds, give it that which is most suitable to the rhyme and metre.—To favour the metre, for instance, the word flattering must sometimes be pronounced three syllables, and sometimes as two, fl'tring: and upon the same account the word avenue may have the accent either upon the first syllable or the second; ávenue, or avénue. So to favour the rhyme, the word flattery at the end of a line must be sometimes sounded as if it were written flatteree, and sometimes as if it ended in i, so as it may best chime with the foregoing verse.

Of the NOTES and POINTS made use of
in WRITING and PRINTING.

AFTER having laid down the rules for pronouncing single words, it will be proper, before we begin with reading, to take notice of the several sorts of points and marks that are used in writing and printing, the first of which are the stops of the voice called, 1. Comma, 2. Semi-colon, 3. Colon: 4. Period. The use of these stops is not only to give a proper time for breathing, but to avoid obscurity and confusion of the sense in the joining words together in a sentence; as for example, the Comma divides the lesser parts of a sentence, and stops the reader's voice till he can tell one. The Semi-colon divides the greater parts of a sentence; at which the reader must pause till he can tell two. The Colon is generally used where the sense, not the

it may be completed, and requires us to pause till we can tell three. The Period, or Full Point, is put when the sense is fully ended, and requires a pause till we can tell four.—But let it be noted, that the Colon and Semi-colon are often used for each other, especially in our bibles.

There are two other marks which may be termed notes of affection, the one used in asking a question, called an Interrogation, and marked thus ? The other is used when we admire, wish, &c. and is usually called an Exclamation, or Admiration, being marked thus ! Each of these require almost as long a pause after it as a period.

The other marks to be met with in reading are chiefly the twelve following :
Apostrophe ' 2. Hyphen - 3. Parenthesis () 4. Brackets [] 5. Paragraph ¶ 6. Quotation " 7. Section § 8. Ellipsis — 9. Index ☞ 10. Asterisk * 11. Obedience † 12. Caret ^.

1. An Apostrophe is set over a word where some letter is left out ; as 'tis for it is, tho' for though, lov'd for loved.

 2. A Hypphen joins syllables together, and sometimes words which make a compound, as apple-pye, cheese-cake, &c. 3. A Parentthesis includes something not necessary to the sense, but brought in to explain or illustrate it; as I know that in me (that is in my flesh) dwelleth no good thing. 4. Brackets or Crotchets include a word or words that are mentioned as the very matter of discourse, as, The little word [man] maketh a great noise in the world. They are also used to enclose part of a sentence cited from another author; sometimes what is to be explained, and sometimes the explanation itself. But Brackets and Parentthesis are often used for one another without distinction. 5. The Paragraph is a mark chiefly used in the Bible and denotes the beginning of some new matter or subject. 6. The Quotation or double comma inverted, is used to distinguish what is cited from an author in his words. 7. A Section shews the division of a chapter, &c. and is used for the same purpose in common books

 as the Paragraph is in the Bible. 8.
 The Ellipsis is used when part of a word or sentence is omitted; as K—g for King. 9. The Index denotes that the passage which it points to is very remarkable. 10. The Asterisk or Aste- ris, generally refers to some remark in the margin, or at the bottom of the page.
 When several of them stand together,
 they imply that some part of an author
 is lost, or too immodest to be read.
 11. The Obelisk or Dagger, and also parallel lines marked thus ||, are used to refer to something in the margin. 12.
 The Caret is made use of in writing (not in printing) to shew the omission of a word or letter, and the place where it ought to come in; as A good boy
early
is in the morning.

Quotations
 A
 It may not here be amiss to mention these crooked lines called Braces, the sign whereof is to couple two or more words or lines together that have a relation to one thing; as,

The vowel a has $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} \text{a long} \\ \text{a short} \\ \text{a broad} \end{array} \right\}$ Sound

A brace is also used in poetry, when three lines have the same rhyme or ending.

There are some other remarks that relate to single words, the use of which ought likewise to be known, and there are, 1. Dialysis or Diæresis.. placed over vowels, to shew they must be pronounced in distinct syllables: as Raphaël, Ephraïm, &c. 2. Circumflex which is set over a vowel to denote long and grave sound; as in Euphrâtes. 3. An Accent marked thus', to shew where the stress of the voice must be placed; as in diligence neglect, &c. And sometimes a double accent is used to shew that the following consonant must be pronounced double, as in bâ'n, bô'mage. 4. To these we may add the Long -, and the Short °, which denote the quantity they are

} Sound of the different LETTERS used in printed Books, and particularly of the Use of the CAPITALS.

THE names of the several sorts of letters we usually meet with in printed books, are the round, full, and upright print, which is called Roman:
the long, leaning, narrow letters, which are called Italick, or Italien: and the ancient Black character, which is called English. Take this specimen of each.

Rom.	Ital.	Eng.
Angel,	Angel,	Angel.

The Old English is seldom used now-days, except in acts of parliament, proclamations, &c. The Roman is chiefly in vogue, for printing books and pamphlets, the Italick being intermixed for the sake of distinguishing proper names, the titles or arguments of chapters, examples to rules laid down, words of any foreign language in texts of scripture or citations from other authors, speeches or sayings of any person, emphatical words, and whatever is most significant and remarkable.

1. A Capital, or great letter, begins every name of the supreme being, as God, Lord, the Almighty, Father, Son, Spirit, &c. 2. All proper names, whether of men or things, and titles of distinction as King, Queen, Knight, Esquire, &c. must also begin with a capital. 3. So must every book, chapter, verse, paragraph, and sentence after a period. 4. A saying, or citation from an author, and every line of a poem ought to begin with a great letter. 5. I and O when single must be capitals. 6. All words, especially names or substantives if they be emphatical, may begin with a capital; but the common practice of beginning every substantive with a great letter, is not to be recommended.

Capitals also are frequently used for ornament, as in the titles of books; and

A Table of NUMBERS and FIGURES.

NUMBERS are usually expressed either by these seven Roman capital letters, I. V. X. L. C. D. which are called Numerals, or by the ten characters viz. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, which are called Figures, and which is a Cypher.

Their Signification.

I. One. V. Five. X. Ten. L. Fifty. C. a hundred. D. Five Hundred. M. Thousand.

1. One. 2. Two. 3. Three. 4. Four. 5. Five. 6. Six. 7. Seven. 8. Eight. 9. Nine. o. Nothing.

Observe, concerning the Numeral Letters, that if a less Numeral Letter placed before a greater, it stands for a greater, as IV stands for Four, IX for Nine, XL for Forty, XC for Ninety. Observe, that if a less Figure is placed before a greater, it stands for a greater, as VI stands for Six, XI for Eleven, XVI for Sixteen, LVI for Fifty six, CLVI for One hundred and six, &c.

Take notice, that the Figures are placed in the right hand, and the Figures in the left hand. Observe, that if a less Figure is placed before a greater, it stands for a greater, as VI stands for Six, XI for Eleven, XVI for Sixteen, LVI for Fifty six, CLVI for One hundred and six, &c.

placed before a greater, it takes away from the greater so much as the lesser stands for; but being placed after a greater, it adds so much to it as the lesser stands for; as the letter V stands for Five; but having I placed before it, it takes One from it, and makes both stand but for Four, thus IV. But I being set after V adds One to it, and makes it thus Six, VI.

Take notice of these examples.

IV Four	V Five	VI Six
X Nine	X Ten	XI Eleven
L Forty	L Fifty	LX Sixty
C Ninety	C Hundred	CX Hundred and ten

Observe, concerning the Characters or Figures, that Cyphers, at the right hand of Figures increase their value ten times, as 1 One, 10 Ten, 100 One Hundred, 1000 One Thousand, 7000 Seven Thousand, but at the left hand they signify nothing at all, as 1001, 001, make but One, 002 but Two. A figure at every remove from the right hand increases its value ten times, as 9 Nine, 98 Ninety-eight, 987 Nine hundred eighty-seven.

XIX Note, also, Where books, chapters, sections and verses are cited, the numerical letters are generally used to signify the book or chapter; and the Figures to signify the sections, verses, or smaller parts; as Exod. xii. 17. Exodus, the twelfth chapter and the seventeenth verse. So B IX. Sect. 24. signifies Book the ninth, and the twenty-fourth section.

Figures are also used to express the things following, (viz.)

1. The order, or succession of things; as 1st, 2^d, 3^d, 4th, 10th, 30th, first, second, third, &c.
2. The fractions or parts of a thing; as $\frac{1}{2}$ one half, $\frac{1}{3}$ one third part, $\frac{1}{4}$ one fourth, or quarter, $\frac{3}{4}$ three quarters, $\frac{5}{8}$ five eights, &c.

4. The size of books, as 4^{to} Quarto, 8^{vo}. Octavo, 12^{mo} Duodecimo, or Twelves, 24^{to} Twenty-fours.

A Letter from a Father to his Daughter, containing very easy Rules for speaking and writing English.

MY DEAR,

NOW you are fourteen years of age, and very capable of comprehending the rules here laid down, for improving you in the grammar of your native language, I beg you will peruse them carefully once or twice a week, and I do not doubt but that in a short time you will get rid of those mistakes, which the habit of conversing with women and illiterate men is apt to produce. To render myself as intelligible as possible to a girl, who cannot be supposed to know any thing relating to those first principles, which are called parts of speech, I shall make use but of very few terms: I shall only desire you to distinguish betwixt the nominative and the accusative cases, and also betwixt a participle and the past tense of a verb. I feel that I already shock you with these uncouth phrases, but I will soon make them familiar to you.—I, Thou, He, We, They, are the nominative cases:—Me, Thee, Him, Us, Them, are the accusative case.—I rode, I ran, I spoke, are the past tense of a verb; *I have rid. I have chosen, I have spoken, I have run, are the participle, so that you are only to observe that the words, rede, chose, spoke, ran, are the past tense; and the words rid, chosen, spoken, run, are the participle. Make yourself mistress but of these two distinctions, and you will not only avoid a thousand blunders in grammar, which the generality of people are perpetually committing, but you will also seldom speak bad English, as by far the greater number of errors, both in speaking and writing, proceed from the want of attention to these points.

* Ridden is, indeed, the participle, yet could not be used by any without the appearance of pedantry.

Confusion of the Nominative and Accusative Cases.
US for WE.

Example.] Which of you came hither first? You answer, us three, instead of we three.

Them for They.

Example.] Which are the soldiers last enlisted? You answer, them there, instead of they there.*

Him for He.

Example.] Who told you so? You answer him for he.

I for Me.

Example.] He gave you and I a shilling each instead of you and me.

Another Example.] That's a secret between you and I, instead of you and me.

Me for I.

Example. Who is there? Me instead of I.

* This here and that there, in certain positions, are vulgarisms too gross to need animadversion, but not when the objects of the question are in different places before us.

Her for She.

Example.] Which of those ladies said so?
You answer, her, instead of she.

She for Her.

Example.] Whom do you speak of? She, instead of her.

Were you a boy who had learnt at a Latin school the Rudiments of the Grammar, I should here tell you, that, in order to distinguish when to use the nominative, and when the accusative case, you should remember that the nominative precedes, and the accusative follows the verb; but I am aware you would not comprehend my meaning, and perhaps would be so alarmed at the crabbedness of the precept as to lay aside my letter, and think no more of it. Therefore let this sentence drop as if it had not been written; and let it be your endeavour to acquire the habit of speaking rightly, by reading often and aloud the examples here set down.

Nevertheless, in many of these examples, though you do not rightly understand the distinction of the accusative and nominative cases, your ear will inform you which of the words to chuse, by only putting the question with both words, and you will feel, without reasoning, which is the proper one: for instance; Who told you so? him. Now ask yourself, What did him tell you? The word offends your ear, and then you say he. Again, Who is there? me.—What is me there? Again, He gave you and I a shilling.—What did he give I a shilling?—By this kind of trial you may generally set yourself right.

Confusion from the frequent use of the Past Tense instead of the Participle.

I have rode, I have chose, I have ran, I have wrote, I have took, has fell : instead of I have rid, I have chosen, I have run, I have written, I have taken, has fallen.

These are some of the principal transgressions you are hourly committing against grammar ; but there are also a few other mistakes very prevalent, I mean the use of the singular for the plural number, and the misapplication of one word for another. How often have I heard you say, We was, and They was, instead of We were, and They were.

I shall not pretend to give you a catalogue of the words misunderstood by the vulgar, as it would be almost endless, but shall mention only such as people of pretty good education are subject to misapply.

Eminent for imminent.

Eminent signifies high, exalted ; imminent signifies impending ; and yet how often do we hear of the eminent danger.

Scout instead of flout.

Nobody believes it, all the world scouts it ; instead of flouts it.

Learn instead of teach.

You should say the master teaches his scholar, and not the master learns his scholar.

What day in the week do you go into the country? You should answer, on a Saturday, and not of a Saturday.

On instead of of.

You often say, We have too much on't, instead of too much of it.

Yourn instead of yours.

Whose hat is this? You should say yours, and not yourn.

Prebendary for Prebend, and Prebend for Prebendary.

Remember that Prebendary is the man, and Prebend the office.

I think, my dear, I have, in a small compass, laid before you such cautions as will not fail to instruct, though they are not sufficient to perfect you in your mother tongue. Accustom yourself to the correctness proposed in this letter, and though you know nothing of substantives, adjectives, adverbs, &c. you will live to blush for some men, who, with all the advantages of a school and university education, will appear to you most wretchedly remiss on this subject. I am, &c.

How to direct Letters to, and address Persons of Distinction, either in Writing or Discourse.

N. B. The superscriptions, or directions for letters, are placed first, and in this Roman Character :

rafter: and the terms of addrefs, or the manner in which the letter is to begin, or in which you are to fpeak to the perfon, are printed in this Italick Character.

To the ROYAL FAMILY.

In writing, his Majesty is thus addreffed, To the King's moft excellent Majesty, Sire, moft gracious Sovereign, or may it please your Majesty. But in fpeaking, thus, Sir, or may it please your Majesty.

To the Queen's moft excellent Majesty: Madam, or may it please your Majesty.

The ladies are addressed according to the rank of their husbands.

The sons of Dukes, Marquisses, and the eldest sons of Earls, have, by courtesy of England, the title of Lord, and right honourable: and the title of Lady, and right honourable is given to all their daughters.

But the youngest sons of Earls are only honour- able and esquires.

The sons of Viscounts and Barons are stiled esquires and honourable, and their daughters are directed to, The honourable Mrs. A. B. but without any other stile: and they have rank among the first gentry without title.

The title of honourable is likewise conferred on such persons as have the king's commission, and upon those gentlemen who enjoy places of trust and honour: and every considerable servant to the king, upon the civil or military list, or to any of the royal family, is stiled Esquire, pro tempore.

The title of right honourable is given to no
Commoners; excepting those who are members of his Majesty's most honourable privy-council,
and to the three Lord-mayors of London, York,
and Dublin, and the Lord-provost of Edinburgh,
during their office.

To the PARLIAMENT.

To the right honourable the Lords spiritual and temporal, in parliament of Great Britain assembled, my Lords, or may it please your Lordships.

To the honourable the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes, in parliament of Great Britain assembled: Gentlemen, or may it please your Honours.

To the right honourable C. D. Speaker of the honourable House of Commons: Sir.

N. B. He has the title of right honourable in consequence of being a privy-counſeilor.

To the CLERGY.

To the moſt reverend father in God Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury; my Lord, or your Grace, or may it please your Grace.

To the right reverend father in God W. Lord Biſhop of S. my Lord, your Lordſhip.

To the right reverend Lord Biſhop of G. Lord Almoner to his Maſteſty, my Lord, your Lordſhip.

reverend Sir. But Deans and Archdeacons are usually called Mr. Dean, and Mr. Archdeacon.

To the Officers of his MAJESTY'S Household.

They are for the most part addressed according to their rank and quality, though sometimes agreeably to the nature of their office: as, my Lord Steward—my Lord Chamberlain—Mr. Vice Chamberlain, &c. and in all superscriptions of letters, which relate to gentlemen's employments, their stile of offices should never be omitted. If they have more offices than one, the highest need only be inserted.

To the COMMISSIONERS and other OFFICERS of the CIVIL LIST.

To the right honourable R. Earl of G. Lord Privy-Seal: my Lord, your Lordship.

To his Grace G. Duke of M. Lord President of the Council: my Lord Duke, your Grace.

To the right honourable R. Viscount B. Lord Great Chamberlain—Earl Marshal of England—One of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, &c.

To the right honourable the Lords Commissioners of the Treasury—Ditto of Trade and Plantations—Ditto of the Admiralty, &c. my Lords, your Lordships.

N. B. If there be a nobleman, or even a commoner, who is a privy-counsellor, among any set of of commissioners, it will be proper to stile them collectively right honourable: the usual address then is, your Lordships, but to the rest of them singly, Sir, your Honour.

To the honourable the Commissioners of his Majesty's Customs—Ditto of the Revenue of Excise—Ditto for the Duty on Salt—Ditto for his Majesty's Stamp Duties—Ditto for victualling his Majesty's Navy, &c. your Honours.

To the Officers of the ARMY.

In the army, all noblemen are stiled according to their rank, to which is added their employ.

To the honourable A. B. Lieutenant-general—Major-general—Brigadier-general of his Majesty's Forces: Sir, your Honour.

To the right honourable J. Earl of S. Captain of his Majesty's first troop of Horse-guards—Band of Gentlemen Pensioners—Band of Yeomen of the Guards, &c. my Lord, your Lordship.

Colonels are often, though not properly, stiled honourable: and all inferior officers should have the name of their employment set first: as for example, to Major W. C——, to Captain T. H. &c. Sir.

To the principal officers of his Majesty's ordnance: your Honours.

To Mrs. Jones, at Bath.

In directing to persons in business, it is usual to specify their trade or profession and place of abode: but to merchants, you are only to mention the town or city where they reside, and not the street, for the being too particular in this respect is an indignity, as it supposes them not eminent—Direct, therefore, thus—

To Mr. John Smith, Merchant, in London.

To Mrs. T. Williams, Merchant, in Bristol.

To Mr. R. Thompson, Draper, in Cheap-side, London.

To Mr. S. Wilson, Surgeon, in Vine Street, Bristol.

N. B. Many people direct to eminent tradesmen in the same manner as to merchants, with only the name of the city where they live, as thus—

To Mr. Thomas Wilson, Grocer, in London.

But this is not so proper, nor indeed so prudent, for if there are two of the name, and both of them eminent, the letters of one will be frequently opened by the other, to the injury, perhaps, of the person who sent the letter, and to his for whom it was intended. Besides this, it leaves the contract, or orders given, too vague and undeterminate, of which an artful man might take advantage.
